

<https://www.facebook.com/share/p/19zZV8eLpZ/>

Baltimore County Government is in Baltimore County, Maryland. Beginning Monday, October 5, the Baltimore City Department of Public Works will begin withdrawing water from the Susquehanna River to supplement water from the Prettyboy and Loch Raven reservoirs. Susquehanna water will be blended with Loch Raven water before being treated and tested at the Montebello water treatment plants. You may notice a slight change in taste, odor or color in your water. It will remain safe for drinking, bathing, and cooking. The length of time that Susquehanna River water will be used will depend on rainfall, reservoir recovery, and overall water-supply conditions. The blended water will primarily serve areas supplied by the Montebello plants, including portions of Baltimore County. Areas supplied by the Liberty system are not expected to receive Susquehanna River water. For more information, please visit <https://tr.ee/A38nAY>

WATER SUPPLY

UPDATE

Beginning Monday, October 5 📅

- Susquehanna River water will be blended with reservoir water, treated, and tested before reaching customers.
- Baltimore County's drinking water will continue to meet drinking water standards.
- Most customers are not expected to notice a significant difference. Some may notice minor changes in taste, odor or color.
- Voluntary water restrictions remain in effect.

tr.ee/A38nAY

